Dorian Sanders astrophotography solo show opens at Canal Street Art Gallery

Canal Street Art Gallery presents: the Dorian Sanders solo show, open January 17th through March 16th. Join the gallery on January 17th from 5-7pm for Free Self Expression on Bellows Falls 3rd Fridays and an opening reception for the artist. All gallery events are free and open to the public, for wheelchair accessibility call 802-289-0104.

Dorian Sanders, based in Windsor, Vermont, shares a collection of prints representing all the artist has accomplished in the field of astrophotography. From the Aurora Borealis to the Milky Way Galaxy, the artist photographs the grandeur of space in conjunction with stunning landscapes. Sanders, born in Massachusetts to two artists, found his passion for photography while working on archaeological digs in Europe, and building timber-framed barns in the United States. Sanders currently works as a photography tour leader in multiple national parks around the country, teaching amateur and experienced photographers how to shoot the night sky and landscapes.

“The night sky is vast and limitless in depth and breadth. It constantly changes throughout the seasons, and always mesmerizes those who behold it. I believe my work as a landscape astrophotographer reflects those qualities. Not only do I enjoy capturing the wonder of the night sky, but I enjoy creating images that show the beauty of our world and many varied landscapes in juxtaposition of stars and galaxies.” -Dorian Sanders
